ADAM HELLER
for STATE REP.

Adam Heller is running for State Representative to create an economic agenda that works for working, middle-class families. At the heart of that agenda is a good education system.

Listening to Adam's opponent, you wouldn't think good things are happening in Connecticut. But we are expected to create hundreds of thousands of jobs in the areas of technology, software, healthcare, trades and management work.

Further, the manufacturing industry in Connecticut employs over 160,000 people at over 4,100 manufacturing establishments. This is a critical piece to our economic future and we need to invest in our high schools including our vocational and technical schools.

After high school, cost should not be a reason that someone doesn't attend an institution of higher education. For many of our recent graduates, a loan payment costs more than a monthly rent payment! Adam pledges to help make going to college more affordable.

Adam believes our workforce-training programs need to be better aligned to meet these needs. Working together, we can make improvements to our education system to help our youth get the jobs of tomorrow.
